Hiring Team — Business Banking, Product & Experience Teams

JPMorgan Chase

Re: Vice President, Financial Analysis — Business Banking PXT

Dear Hiring Team,

I am applying for the Financial Analysis VP role in Business Banking PXT. I spent six years at JPMorgan (2015–2021) doing the firm's hardest financial analysis — the kind regulators grade — and I would like to return and point it at product decisions.

The financial-analysis record. As Capital Controller in Basel Measurement & Analytics I owned Basel III RWA and capital adequacy across a $50B portfolio and identified $180M in capital optimization for CFO decision support. In Treasury/CIO I led CCAR forecast validation and qualitative model challenge across a $2.6T balance sheet under SR 15-18, and built automated reconciliations that cut manual review ~40%. I know the difference between analysis that describes a number and analysis that changes a decision.

Why a PXT seat. Product and experience teams increasingly ship AI-assisted features, and the finance partner who evaluates them needs to understand the technology, not just the P&L.; I authored an AI governance framework referencing NIST AI RMF and SR 11-7, shipped a RAG-based analytics assistant (Python, LangChain) that cut review cycle time ~35%, and I am a DBA candidate at Florida International University (expected 2028, GPA 3.81) researching how professionals over-rely on automated tools — a completed IRB-approved study on anchoring bias, and a dissertation in development on automation bias in AI-assisted judgment. That is a finance partner who can pressure-test both the forecast and the model behind it.

Honest framing. My P&L; work has been firm-level and regulatory (capital, liquidity, resolution) rather than product-line FP&A.; The mechanics transfer directly; the product-margin vocabulary I will pick up quickly — I did exactly that ramp when I moved from examination (I began as a state bank examiner with the Florida Office of Financial Regulation) into bank finance.

I live in Newark and am available for a fully on-site schedule immediately.

Sincerely,

Yasir A. Malik
